

The 2020 Daily Hound

Page 2
Kelly's
Corner

Page 3
Off the CUFF

Page 4
Al's
Findings

News of Interest for law-enforcement professionals • Winter 2020

The Daily Hound is back!

The crime scene newsletter designed to give you just a few table scraps and nibbles of information.

You know it isn't right to feed your dog at the dinner table...but just a little won't hurt either. So goes the articles found in the Daily Hound. Hopefully, it is full of little scraps that you can use in your day to day.

But for it to really be of use, we want your input. Send us your tips and tricks of the trade, the little secrets you use that may be of interest to other investigators. Possible words of encouragement that we all can use. Keep it brief or make it long. We will paraphrase it down for you into short, bite-sized chunks of information for easy digestion. General Law Enforcement oriented, or geared to any discipline related to crime scene including property and the crime lab.

And, just for your submission, you will get a free bottle of Tracker's Sludge, Crime Scene baseball cap or printed t-shirt. So get those ideas flowing, on paper or an email. We are waiting on YOU! C'mon. Get your tip published!!! Send it to lpv@peaveycorp.com.

Joe's Whatchamacallit for latent prints

Always thinking and developing. Retired Lt./CSI from now Arizona, Joe Siefferman needed a solution to keep his backing cards dust free. He came to us, and his drawings and ideas came to life. We call it the Backing Bunker™. It's like a card dealer's card shoe that dispenses cards...fresh and clean...one at a time. Refillable and simple. Fits in a pocket or kit box. Sells for $15. Joe may not get rich immediately, but you never know.

Spread the word and let's take this invention viral!
#05868 Backing Bunker $15.00

THE LYNN PEAVEY COMPANY 800-255-6499

Kelly's Crime Scene Corner

Got to admit I was a typical CSI on this one. A fingerprint powder that smells like Mom's fresh baked cookies? Crazy. Took my first whiff. OK, so I was tempted to right off the bat, lick off the rim as a little taste test...but didn't. Smelled good enough to eat, but question is, would it work to develop prints for a picky investigator/educator?

Dipped my clean Peavey brush into a small pile of powder (so as not to cross-contaminate the whole jar.) Tapped off the excess (as I usually do) then swirled this vanilla/cinnamon/nutmeg blend of spices ever so gently over my test prints. To my shock, they developed perfectly and instantly... almost better than with a standard colored Peavey Powder.

Almost in disbelief, I tried it again and again on a variety of surfaces, oily and dry latents. Still the same excellent results! I give it a two thumbs up! It's called Powder In The Raw...comes in a variety of colors and pricing at around $5 a jar is great too!

#05495 RAW Black Fingerprint Power - 2 oz. $7.95
Introductory Price $5.25

#05491 RAW White Fingerprint Power - 2 oz. $7.95
Introductory Price $5.25

If you have questions about this Crime Scene tidbit, reach out to Regional Forensic Specialist, Kelly Ayers, MS, CSCSA, well-known trainer, speaker and past CSI.

She can be reached for comments or just shooting the breeze at Kayers@lynnpeavey.com or 681-285-8080.

off the CUFF by DOUG PEAVEY

President of the LYNN PEAVEY COMPANY • e-mail: doug@lynnpeavey.com

Simple Simon Says???

Establishing relevance in the crime scene/property/laboratory has always been a challenge.

It has to be more than free this, free that, discount offers and reduced shipping. We started that trend 40 years ago with our Sludge, free t-shirts with orders, caps, sweatshirts, posters, gear bags, bloody Gag-Bags, Mug-Shots and even Peach-Pie Moonshine in a leaky Urine Cup!

OK...I will admit, the Moonshine gig was over the top. People from the ATF had even discussed with me at the trade show the illegality and the prison terms I might be facing if I didn't cease and desist. No. Seriously! At least it got a lot of attention...people saying, "Go to the booth with the 10' tall, giant inflatable dog...they are giving out Moonshine in evidence packaging!!!"

You will still get the creative "appreciation gifts," but hopefully, you will keep coming back to us because of our people, and the true innovation that we provide each and every day with the products we make.

HEADS UP...if you get an email from us saying something about Simon Says, or anything remotely to that effect, open it. It should get a few chuckles and a bit of self-introspection. Like our bloodhound mascot Tracker, don't you wish that more people thought like Simon? "And that's about all I have to say on that."

We'll beat anyone's advertised price! It's that simple. Give us a chance – and we will absolutely convince you!

AI's Findings ...From Deep in the Trash

I really didn't have to dig too deep to uncover this one.

We have all been there. Sealing evidence with evidence tape. If using Lynn Peavey's Zipr-Weld, it is especially tacky, fragile and aggressive... which it's supposed to. If it wasn't, what's the point, right? I was talking once to a crime scene tech in Colorado who uses this technique. We all know crime scene officers are supposed to wear gloves, right? To avoid questions of contamination, etc. Use the black, nitrile, textured gloves instead of the latex ones. They offer the same protection, but it makes it so much easier to handle adhesive tapes.

I tried it myself. Compared the difference between ordinary latex gloves and the black nitrile. Night and day difference.

Evidently, simply the texture of the gloves makes it almost twice as likely NOT to tangle yourself up in a huge ball of wasted tape.

This crime scene tidbit was provided by one of our Regional Marketing & Sales Consultants, Alan Price, well-known criminal justice educator and past CSI.

You can "bark at him" at alprice370@msn.com or 303-710-1547.

ATTN: CRIME-SCENE INVESTIGATION/NARCOTICS

The Daily Hound

Winter 2020

This newsletter is published by the Lynn Peavey Company as a service for law-enforcement professionals. If you have an idea that would be of interest to those who read The Daily Hound, fax it to us at 913-495-6787. Or e-mail it: doug@lynnpeavey.com

LYNN PEAVEY COMPANY

P.O. Box 14100

Lenexa, KS 66285-4100

Copyright © 2020 Lynn Peavey Company